We offer you an Executive MBA program based in Stockholm, Sweden, known as a leader in business innovation and sustainability. Sweden is also the birthplace of global companies such as IKEA, Volvo, H&M, and more recently global giants such as Klarna, Spotify, Mojang, King, and Northvolt.

The SSE MBA is for business leaders who want to drive success in a global context and be inspiring leaders. The program prepares you for your next career move, boosts your leadership potential, and provides you with knowledge and tools to build, lead and develop organizations in the global arena. You also build a valuable international network of business leaders, to leverage for future opportunities and challenges.

We strive for diversity in the class. A diverse group of executives delivers varied perspectives, better learning – and excellent networks. Our classes represent a wide range of backgrounds, with experience from industries such as manufacturing, automotive, technology, life science, forestry, entertainment, telecom, retail and banking. Participants work in any size of company or the public sector, and some are entrepreneurs. Around half of the participants in each group, will have a non-Swedish or multinational background, and most will have extensive international experience academically and/or professionally. The average age in the program is 39.

The SSE MBA is designed with a flexible format on top of a General Management foundation. You will be able to personalize your learning with a number of elective courses given at SSE’s campuses and at member schools in the GNAM. Sustainability is integrated in all courses, as being an important factor for success in doing business of today and for tomorrow, and our leadership module will help you grow as a leader and guide you in your career development.

Our MBALive® learning approach aims at delivering insight into the complexity and dynamics of organizations. Therefore, all participants pursue several projects in real organizations, using theoretical management concepts and frameworks acquired during the program.

We also do three international field trips, to Latvia, Singapore and Silicon Valley. A fundamental part of this program is the value of various perspectives. Visiting different markets and applying theories and models in a variety of contexts is an essential part of the learning.

“There were many times I would come back from a program week and be sharing learnings and different business models with my team right away. The Executive MBA has a really holistic learning approach. But what you don’t realize is all the life lessons and the journey you take alongside the learning process.”
